DETAILED ACTION

It has come to the attention of the examiner (after the amendments to the claims due to 112 problems) that even though Applicant points out in the Election of 06/28/02 that the elected Species read on Fig. 3, the elected claim in fact read on Fig. 2 instead. The examiner has carried out examination according to the elected claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter that the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 recites, "said opposite side..." This lacks antecedent basis. See that while claim 2 recites an opposite side for active regions, it does not provide antecedent basis for the above phrase. For the purpose of this office action, the examiner assumes the claim refers to contacts disposed on the active region of the chip, which will be in accordance with the specie recited in claim 2.

Also, the claim recites, "through-type via contacts". While the examiner is aware of the meaning of via, the meaning of contact, and the meaning of through holes in the semiconductor art, the examiner cannot ascertain what the quoted phrase above refers to. For this Office Action the examiner assumes Applicant refers to contacts.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wenzel et al. (US 6150724).

Wenzel et al. discloses (see fig. 7):

A semiconductor device comprising a BGA substrate 106 having one principal plane furnished with a large number of solder balls 112; a first semiconductor chip 102 including bumps 110 and active regions (where the bumps are disposed), said bumps and active regions being formed on a first side of the semiconductor chip, said bumps serving as electrodes attached to another principal plane of said BGA substrate (see bumps corresponding to chip are on an opposite surface of substrate than bumps 112); and a first chip capacitor (104; Col. 18, lines 51+) attached to said active regions of said first semiconductor chip or to the opposite side of said active regions (see 104 is opposite the active region of 102 and on it) of said first semiconductor chip 102, said first chip capacitor serving to reduce power source noise.

Wenzel et al. also discloses:

Art Unit: 2827

The semiconductor device according to claim 2 wherein said first semiconductor chip 102 further includes through-type via contacts 108 extending from said active regions to said opposite side in said first semiconductor chip, and said first chip capacitor is electrically connected to said active regions through said through-type via contacts.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure includes Degani et al., Ahn et al., Farooq et al., Chan et al., and Pompeo et al. all disclose packages of chips including passive components such as capacitors.
